Welsh Miners Stand Loyal By King

CARDIFF, September 28.—(By Associated Press)—Wales, the source of the British navy's coal supply, has shown its loyalty to the king in a manner highly gratifying to the admiralty. In the face of attempts on the part of labor leaders to take advantage of the present war for the enforcement of demands upon the admiralty, the Welsh miners have gladly waived all holidays and are working Sundays whenever it is necessary to keep the navy supply of coal up to the required standard. Union officials took the position that it was not necessary for the union men to surrender their holidays, but the miners overturned the ruling of officials with unanimity.

Bayonet Encounters and Hand-To-Hand Conflicts Have Been Frequent and Defenders of France, Repulsing As- saults, Have Gained More Ground

LONDON, September 28.—(Associated Press by Federal Wireless)—Last night the situation in France was still without material change, according to official announcements issued by the war office and by Paris.

For three days and nights the Germans have hurled their armies against the Allies along the entire line in attacks of unprecedented violence.

ASSAULTS HAVE BEEN REPULSED

These attempts to force an opening have been met and repulsed at every point, and the Allies have been able to make slight headway in counter attacks.

The German losses have been enormous. The opposing forces have clashed frequently in hand-to-hand combats, and bayonet encounters have been of frequent occurrence.

SPIRIT OF ALL TROOPS RUNS HIGH

The spirit shown by the troops on both sides has been remarkable.

The continuous fighting and the inclement weather has not served to dampen their ardor and they are responding to orders for attack as freely as at the beginning.

Advices from France say that the terrific efforts of the Germans to break through the Allies' lines in the past three days are the result of orders from very high source.

GERMANS LOSE HEAVILY ON RIGHT

On the right where the Germans have been concentrating their efforts to recapture the ground they have lost, their attacks upon the British army resulted in very heavy loss of men.

The official report last night says the situation is satisfactory.

MAUI PREPARING FOR CONVENTION

Large Attendance Expected at Civic Convention to Be Held Next Month

Maui is getting ready for the civic convention to be held in Wailuku from October 3 to 5. Preparations are being made for a large crowd. Thirty-five delegates are expected from Hilo alone, and probably twice that number from Oahu. Kauai expects to have a strong representation.

Maui is enthusiastic over the possibility of the convention being the greatest and most successful ever held. The Maui News has this to say about it in its last issue:

"Director Boyne has been advised that probably thirty-five delegates from the Hilo Board of Trade will be in attendance at the big convention, which begins next Saturday in Wailuku. The Hilo bunch will come in uniform, and expect to make a striking appearance. Just what the other organizations may have up their sleeve is not yet known, but it is expected that some surprises are to be sprung."

"At the request of the Honolulu committee, a place has been reserved on the program for an address from A. L. Dean, president of the College of Hawaii. His subject will be: 'The College of Hawaii as a Territorial Asset.'"

Maui Hotel Enlarging

"In order to properly handle the crowd of several hundred which will sit down to the big dining banquet on Monday evening, October 5, Manager Field is having a 100-foot addition built on to the north side of the dining room. This will make it possible to seat the entire delegation at one long table."

"The various sessions of the convention will be presided over by President F. F. Balliwin, of the local chamber of commerce. The address of welcome to the visitors will be delivered by W. F. Pogue, at the armory, on Saturday morning, following the arrival of the steamers."

"Among the topics which will be discussed by the different bodies during the convention are: 'Promotion,' by Ed Towse, of the Promotion Committee; 'Transportation Facilities,' by a representative of the Hilo Board of Trade; 'Co-operation,' by Rev. J. M. Lygate, of the Kauai Chamber of Commerce; and a talk on a 'Hand-Around' building for San Francisco, by A. H. Ford."

Loan at Pala

"The committee has decided to give the loan on Sunday at Pala, and a trip will be made sometime during the day to the Homestead district, where the ceremony of turning the water into the big new ditch of the East Maui Irrigation Company will take place, and weather permitting, a general survey of the homesteads will be made."

ASHES VALUABLE AS A FERTILIZER

Unleached hardwood ashes are valuable for building up and sweetening the soil. They contain potash, lime and phosphoric acid, producing a prompt and lasting effect. The potash in wood ash is active caustic potash which benefits the plant growth and tends to lessen attacks of insects. Wood ashes are valuable as a top dressing for meadow lands, lawns and fruit, resulting in fruit of fine color and rich flavor. They are excellent for all grains.

A letter received from a large user of hardwood ashes in Maine says: "The ashes I used a year ago gave entire satisfaction and all the farmers around here intend using them. I used down with oats last year and many say it was the prettiest piece of oats they ever saw. The hay this year is said to be the finest field ever seen in this locality." Hardwood ashes can be had of reliable dealers subject to inspection upon arrival.

CLOUD BURST IN HILO DROWNS ONE

Citizens Watch Nerve Attempt at Rescue by Brave Hawaiian Swimmer

One fisherman lost his life, and another narrowly escaped death near Hilo, when they were caught in a terrific storm and marooned on a river island, which was destined soon to be swept over by the rushing storm water, and the rock and debris carried with it.

The fishermen were Japanese. The lives of both would have been saved doubtless, had not one refused to accept the assistance tendered him. Speaking of the incident the Hawaii Herald says:

A cloudburst had occurred up in the mountains and the stream, which had been at normal level all day, with the usual rocks and small islands visible suddenly became a raging torrent as a wall of water over six feet high came racing and roaring down the gulch. The water came like a tidal wave, and near could be heard miles away. On the crest of the waves came debris of all kinds and large stones were rolled over and over as they were forced down the rushing stream.

Go to Rescue

The two men, Japanese named Sataki Masajiro and Nakamura, saw that they were marooned and they at once began to announce their predicament to passersby. The police were informed of the trouble and Deputy Sheriff Martin got busy. A long rope was secured and preparations were made to get the men off the island. The first cast of the rope landed well, and one of the Japanese seized it and began to fasten it to some guava bushes. It was seen then that the shore end should be made fast higher up the bank of the stream. The rope, as it was fixed, was sagging a lot, and it was apparent that a man could not be dragged through the raging water with any chance of coming out alive.

The men on the island were signalled to loosen the rope and it was made plain to them that the scheme was to make the rope fast higher up the river bank. One of the men untied the rope and then the shore end was moved to a better place.

An Attempt at Rescue

In the meantime Mike Uili, a Hawaiian who is employed by the Hilo Electric Light Company, saw the danger to the swimming Japanese. Mike who was standing on the springboard that jutted out from the bank of the river, waited till Sataki was almost passing him, and then dived into the raging torrent. He made a good calculation as to distance and soon grabbed the man. The two men were swept down the stream holding on to one another.

As the railroad bridge was approached the Japanese appeared to be struggling a lot, and, when the point where the current of the right and left bank meet was reached, the two men were snaked down and disappeared in a whirlpool. The spectators thought it was all over and that the Japanese and his brave would-be rescuer were both drowned. However, after a few seconds, Mike's head appeared above the water but there was no sign of the Japanese. Then the Hawaiian dived to the bottom and disappeared again. He reappeared after thirty seconds but without the Japanese. Again the native dived, but the search was fruitless. The Japanese had apparently been carried along under the water by undercurrents.

The Hawaiian did not give up the search for some time, but he had a dangerous swim in the stiff current below the railroad bridge and, finally, he got to shore near the railroad depot. The Japanese was not seen again. His fate is still a mystery.

Second Man Is Saved

In the meantime, while the desperate effort to save Sataki's life was being made by Uili, the crowd of rescuers with the rope had rigged up a line with a "boson's chair" attachment. The line was made fast to a tree on the river bank, and then the surplus length of the line was also sent across with a loop and a piece of wood on it. The loop and stick formed a seat for Nakamura, and he was hauled dry and safe to the shore.

From Nakamura's story, the two men had gone to the river to fish. They went from pool to pool, and tried the whole of the main stream with varying luck. The water was low and only a small quantity was coming down the river. It was not raining, and the two Japanese did not in any way suspect that, higher up in the mountains, a cloudburst had occurred.

Water Came Rapidly

After a few hours of quiet fishing the two men heard a roaring sound, and even as they turned to look saw a wall of mud-colored water racing down past the electric light plant. They started on the run from the outlying rocks, and had hardly reached the larger island when the water was on them, cutting off their escape. They climbed to the higher spots and began to attract the attention of the people who were crossing the bridge.

The Hawaiians who did such brave work in attempting to rescue Sataki say that when the two of them were sucked under by the whirlpool he let go of the Japanese and went right to the bottom of the river. There he crouched for a second, and then, kicking off from the bottom with all his strength, propelled himself to the surface.

Late on Wednesday afternoon the body of the Japanese Sataki was found floating off Coconut Island by some Japanese who were looking for the body.

PLANS ARE LAID FOR TERRITORIAL FIGHT ON LIQUOR

Anti-Saloon League of Honolulu Will Be Made to Cover Islands

NEW ORGANIZATION NOW BEING FORMED

All Churches of Hawaii to Have Membership in Great General Convention

In order to extend the activities of the Honolulu Anti-Saloon League and to form a territorial organization along the same lines as a branch of the national order, a committee, consisting of D. C. Peters, George P. Castle, W. P. Ferguson, Theodore Richards, W. D. Westervelt, W. A. Bowen and J. W. Wadman, has been appointed to arrange for the reorganization of the local society.

The new organization will include delegates appointed by the churches of the Territory, including all denominations, on a pro rata basis of membership, and all pastors, ex-officio.

Annual Convention Planned

These delegates will convene annually, elect an executive committee to serve ad interim, outline the policy of the organization, choose its officers, make recommendations and elect delegates to the national convention on the mainland.

The committee on reorganization instructed the superintendent, Doctor Wadman, to visit the island conventions of Maui, Kauai and Oahu, representing the churches of the Hawaiian board, and present the matter of a proposed territorial organization and ascertain the opinion of these conventions.

A week ago or more the Maui convention, at Wailuku, voted unanimously and enthusiastically in favor of the proposition.

Doctor Wadman will visit the Oahu convention, in Kaneohe, this week and later go to Kauai for the same purpose.

Wider Organization in Prospect

If these conventions all favor the proposed plan, as Maui did, the committee will in all probability proceed to organize on this Hawaiian side, and the league, under a new flag and with a bigger name should be in existence early in 1915.

During a visit which Rev. Ervin S. Chapman, D.D., a well known veteran temperance worker of California, paid Hawaii upon the invitation of a few leading citizens, the local branch of the Anti-Saloon League was organized March 1, 1901, and the following officers appointed: President, Theo. Richards; First Vice President, Rev. G. L. Pearson; Second Vice President, Dr. G. M. Whitney; Third Vice President, Franklin Austin; Treasurer, J. B. Atherton; Secretary, J. M. Moore.

Chairman, Agitation Committee, Moses Nakamura; Chairman, Legislation Committee, Rev. W. D. Westervelt; Chairman, Finance Committee, Rev. J. E. Erdman; Chairman, Law Enforcement Committee, Miss May Wood; Chairman, Enrollment Committee, William Templeton.

Record of Anti-Saloon League

At a meeting of the executive committee, held March 11, 1901, a constitution was adopted and the league was named "The Anti-Saloon League of Honolulu," auxiliary to the "Anti-Saloon League of America." The object of the league was declared to be "the suppression of liquor saloons in the city of Honolulu and in the Territory of Hawaii, by securing the enactment and enforcement of laws to that end." A little later, by-laws were enacted and a superintendent in the person of Rev. L. M. Hartley, D.D., was employed.

Doctor Hartley entered upon his duties in the early part of June, 1901, and until December 31 of the same year accomplished a splendid work for temperance. He toured all the islands, held public services, distributed literature, organized societies and with the assistance of Messrs. J. M. Whitney, for many years the president of the W. C. T. U., secured temperance instruction in the course of study adopted by the public schools, in accordance with federal legislation.

Education Is Begun

Doctor Hartley was obliged to resign and leave the islands owing to the ill-health of his wife and at the beginning of January, 1902, Rev. H. W. Rice was appointed superintendent, remaining in charge for one year. An interval then occurs during which the position of superintendent remained vacant until Hon. John G. Woolley's appointment three years later. Upon Mr. Woolley's return to the Coast, Mr. George W. Paty was in charge for some years as agent, January 1 of this year, the present superintendent, Rev. J. W. Wadman, D.D., was appointed and an educational campaign organized.

"The work of the league has been well prosecuted during the dozen years of its history and the effects thereof on behalf of righteousness and sobriety are evident today," said Doctor Wadman, yesterday. "Prohibition of the liquor traffic in Hawaii may be quite in the distance but not so far away. It comes to be a dream, it presses on towards our fair shores as a living reality. Some of the original promoters and charter members of the league have passed on to their reward in Heaven, but many others remain and are still deeply interested in the work now being carried."
